Dear people

This is certainly exciting news. Yay!!!!

I, Wayne John Batistic of 2 First Avenue Erowal Bay, do solemnly swear, that am in total support of raw milk and dairy products becoming commercially available. The sooner the better. It's delicious and much healthier than the cooked stuff that I personally find difficult to digest and therefore avoid where possible.

Dairy farmers will sell more milk because all those folk out there that are lactose intolerant, won't be. When they find this out they will start to buy it again. They'll be healthier for it. Raw milk is a wholesome food whereas it's heat treated counterparts are not.

On that note, I would hope that the price to the end user be reduced somewhat since raw milk will require less handling and energy to process.

I would hope that when this goes ahead, you don't feel the need to vaccinate the cattle any more than you already do. I strongly disagree that vaccinations are necessary and that they in fact weaken an animal making them more prone to illness. Just think back to your last flu shot and you'll know what I am talking about.

Sincerely yours,

Wayne Batistic
