Dear Sir,

Hemp has for long been regarded as the most undervalued resource. I am all in favour of it being promoted in Australia. I suspect that the nay sayers have some fear of this product for financial or competitive reasons, but there should be none of this as it is safe, user friendly and less costly in terms of the environment to produce than cotton which uses huge amounts of water and chemicals of all kinds. We should welcome hemp's potential for commercial use in Australia.

Yours, Joanna van Kool
