

Possible questions

Were the affected farms cage egg producers or free range and is this more likely to occur in cage egg farms?

I understand there is a vaccine for Salmonella SE, is this available and if not why not?

If I have fed my chooks egg shells from affected batches will they be contaminated?

What should I do if I think my chickens might be contaminated?

How likely is this to spread beyond the affected farms?

How likely is it that this strain can be eradicated?

What happens to the chickens on affected farms?

How many chickens have been killed as a result of the outbreak?

What happens to the destroyed chickens?