Hello,

Legislation should not remove choice from people's lives. Rather, if the government feels so strongly about the health risks of raw milk, then it should advertise against it. People should have access to whichever foods that they wish, without the government imposing its agenda upon them.

By the way, have any of you looked at the research?? It is pretty obvious that raw milk is FAR superior than pasteurised and homogenised. It might be worth you while to take 5 minutes and have a look. I am more than willing to assist you if you wish.
