Subject: Notice - irradiation of fruit and vegetables

Notice

Dear [REDACTED] and all board members

The living cells in fruit and vegetables are important for our health. This fact is irrefutable.

Exposing objects to beams of radiation is called irradiation. The term applies to all types of radiation including radiation from the nuclei of atoms. Irradiation from radioactive decay can damage living cells.

Irradiation of any food causes adverse health effects and will increase the profits of large ag and pharma companies. A quick look at your funding trails show conflict of interest and corporate influence in the government/corporate proposal to irradiate fruits and vegetables.

Anyone who let's our food regulation be effected by corporate lobbying, media or science produced by interested group agendas is criminal and will eventually be held accountable and punished severely, alongside having to carry the guilt of wrongdoings that lead/led to harm.

It's important to fully understand how corporate agendas are effecting universities, research and scientific publication, media, governments and even public assumptions. Look at who sits on what boards, look at how creative business law hides affiliations, look at lobbying and political donation in Australia, look at university and research funding trails, understand publication bias and how new research and it's implementation is often based on previously influenced publication, surely you will see? Surely you understand that food and medicine should be free of this interference?

It's your job to protect us so please make yourself aware of this corruption effecting public health and don't for one minute think that we are not watching and that you won't personally be held accountable. You serve us, not big business or the economy!

Best Regards
